Agenda Item VIII: [Discussion Item] IFC Survey on Faculty Morale

The past three years have been unprecedented in U.S. higher education. The pandemic, loss of research, mass remote teaching, mounting student debt, the looming demographic cliff—all have stretched faculty responsible for research, teaching, and service. To better understand the effects of these pressures, we want to have an open discussion to help us formulate a survey of our faculty (beyond the traditional campus climate survey). What challenges are most affecting our work and morale? What complaints and concerns are you hearing from your colleagues on this campus? As the Executive Committee for the IFC, it is our duty to reflect and support your complaints and concerns, especially in terms of the faculty's participation in university governance. Thus, we need to hear from you.
